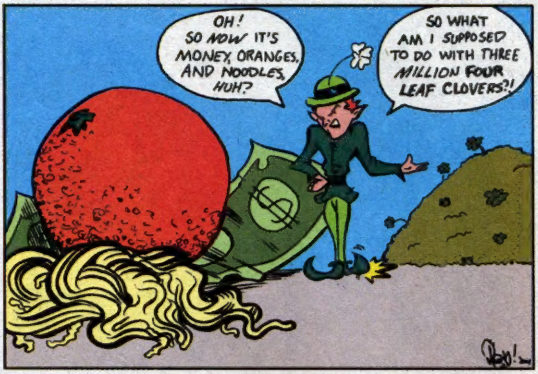
Chinese New Year

By Eleni Stephanides
Piedmont, CA



Every year, billions of people of all religions celebrate the Chinese New Year. People eat Chinese candy, Chinese cookies, lemon squares, noodles and tangerines on Chinese New Year. Tangerines, noodles and oranges are considered good luck, and candy is supposed to give you a "sweet" year. The Chinese New Years go by animal horoscopes, including the year of the dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, rooster, dog and pig. This year is the year of the snake. The dragon is considered the most sacred animal in the Chinese horoscope. You can see long dragons led by people parading in the streets at Chinese New Year parades. The Chinese New Year is dated differently than America's because they count the days according to the moon's cycle, instead of the sun's. This year, Chinese new year was celebrated on January 24, and went on for 15 days. Chinese also perform the moon dance, which is supposed to drive out the bad spirits. On Chinese New Year, people invite family over, and have a feast. So remember, you don't have to be Chinese to celebrate Chinese New Year. Come on, join in the festivities!

Duckbill Platypus

By Alexandra Prince
Slingerlands, NY

The duckbill platypus is an egg-laying mammal of eastern Australia. It belongs to a group of animals called monotremes. It has a flat, rubbery bill and a beaver-like tail. Its webbed feet enable it to swim well. Each hind foot of the male has a poison spur that can kill small animals. The platypus eats about one-half its own body weight in a day. While feeding, it shuts its eyes, ears, and nose, but electrosensors in its bill signal prey. The platypus lives to be 10 years of age.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

Dear Archie Readers,

Next month will be a time to celebrate two major events at Archie Comics. The first will be the one hundredth edition of BETTY & VERONICA DOUBLE DIGEST. This 192 page collector's edition is filled with the hilarious adventures of the most famous teen dream queens in the world. One story in particular, entitled "Soft in the Heart" has been colored using some of the latest digital enhancements. In fact, we would like to know your opinion of this new color technique. The second is the fiftieth issue of BETTY & VERONICA SPECTACULAR. Betty and Veronica's "perfect" friendship is put to the test in a story called "Friends Till The End." Unknown to each other, Betty and Veronica have submitted very different essays about the definition of friendship for a "Best Friends in America" TV show contest....and they both win. Can "reality TV" cancel Betty and Veronica's long-running friendship? Will there be an issue number 51? Don't miss these two history-making issues.

Now I'd like to tell you about a new feature that you can be part of. If you're a fan of ARCHIE'S WEIRD MYSTERIES—and who isn't—you'll love "MAKE YOUR OWN MYSTERY." You got it, kids, we want you to suggest mysteries for Archie and his friends to solve. The harder the mystery, the better. Just send your mystery to: "Make Your Own Mystery" c/o Archie Comic Publications, Inc., P.O. Box 419, Mamaroneck, NY 10543-0419 or E-mail: paulc@archiecomics.com

If your mystery is picked, we will turn it into an entire comic story. It will be up to Archie and the gang to solve it. Very important, DO NOT SOLVE THE MYSTERY yourself! Leave that to Archie and his pals. Winners will receive a FREE one-year subscription to Archie's Weird Mysteries. Plus, you'll have your name in print for coming up with the idea. You'll be the envy of all your friends. Your parents will be happy you found something creative to do. Aunt Millie will twist the cheeks on your face till they turn bright red. If that's not incentive, what is?

If you have anything else to say, write to:

Victor Gorelick, Editor
Archie Comic Publications, Inc.
P.O. Box 419 Mamaroneck, NY 10543-0419
